

"HONEST GOVERNMENT" HANGS IN BALANCE, KEY SAYS IN URGING PLAN'S SUPPORT TODAY

DeKalb Officer Killed in Wild Chase Through City

BAILIFF BROWN'S SKULL IS CRUSHED AS CAR OVERTURNS

20-Mile Race From Druid Hills Through Downtown Area, Ends on Gilmer Street.

PURSUED ROADSTER ESCAPES INTO NIGHT

County Policeman Says Chase Was Started in Belief That Small Car Was Hauling Liquor.

After a wild chase through DeKalb and Fulton counties, including the heart of downtown Atlanta, a car containing four DeKalb officers overturned on Gilmer street between Pratt and Moore Tuesday night, instantly killing Bailiff J. Tom Brown, of DeKalb, while a small roadster bearing a young man and woman they were pursuing vanished into the night.

According to the officers in the pursuit car, they "jumped" the roadster in the Druid Hills section of DeKalb county in the belief that it was a rum machine. Then began a chase which, according to Oscar B. Rowell, DeKalb county policeman, continued for about 20 miles through the upper end of DeKalb county, into the Piedmont park section of this city, then southward over main boulevards penetrating the business section, and out into the Gilmer street area, where the officers' car struck a depression in the street and overturned.

In addition to Bailiff Brown and Policeman Rowell, the car which turned over contained Johnny Jones, an investigator in the office of Solicitor-General Claud Smith, of the Stone Mountain circuit, and Policeman W. A. Carroll, of the DeKalb county force, who was driving. None of the quartet was injured except Brown, whose head was crushed, causing instantaneous death.

Roadster Failed To Stop.

Rowell said the small automobile was cruising about the Druid Hills section Tuesday night on the lookout for whisky cars. At Peachtree church, near Wallace Mill, on the Emory-Tucker pike, he said, they espied the roadster with the man and woman. Thinking it was a liquor car, he said, they called out for the couple to stop. Instead, it was said, the young man speeded up his machine, and the officers likewise increased their speed.

Although the official car was of a greater speed and power than the machine bearing the couple, the chase lengthened, out mile after mile, the officers being unable to overtake the two. According to Rowell, the officers came close to the other automobile several times, and each time called out for them to stop, but, ignoring these commands, he said, the smaller machine each time drew away.

This circumstance, being repeated time after time, even after the two automobiles had reached the more thickly congested part of the city.

"We must have chased them 20 miles," Rowell said, following the accident. "Some times we got close enough to them to yell to them to stop, but they wouldn't pay any attention to us. We just couldn't get them to stop."

The officers, Rowell said, were not able to obtain the license number of the machine they were after.

Larger Car Overtaken.

Traversing the downtown area, according to the story of the county officers, they followed the roadster down Gilmer street, with the occupants of the small car apparently—

Fatherly Gangster Wins Court Leniency

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The $10,000 bond of Joe Salts, public enemy and former bear baron, was not forfeited today despite the fact he failed to appear before Judge John H. Lyle in felony court to answer a vagrancy charge preferred against him.

"Mr. Salts is not in court this morning, your honor, because he spent the entire night at the bedside of his son," explained Attorney George Crane, Salts' counsel. "The boy has been unconscious since last Wednesday and his condition is grave." The son was injured in an automobile accident.

SELLING OF STOCK IN G. O. P. WEEKLY UNDER SCRUTINY

Promotion Methods of Publisher Henry Davis Brought to Attention of Postmaster Brown.

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Efforts of a group of Georgia republican leaders to promote a political weekly, founded recently in Atlanta with Henry C. Davis, secretary of the recognized republican patronage committee of the state, as publisher, today were brought under the scrutiny of Postmaster-General Walter F. Brown and on tomorrow will be "called to the attention" of the department of justice.

To Ask Investigation.
Complaints to the postoffice department, the postmaster-general said today, from unnamed republican leaders in Georgia told of the methods used by Davis in soliciting stock subscriptions to the new weekly, understood here to have issued its first number about two months ago. Solicitations are understood to have been made to federal officeholders in the state, including postmasters.

Davis, it is said here, sent letters to the officeholders and pointed out that he was "giving those interested in the administration" an opportunity to become stockholders in the "Georgia Republican" at $20 per share. Davis has been named as the central figure against whom complaints have been directed.

At the same time, Senator William J. Harris, of Georgia, said tonight he has been apprised of the complaints and announced his intention to call the matter to the attention of the department of justice for action.

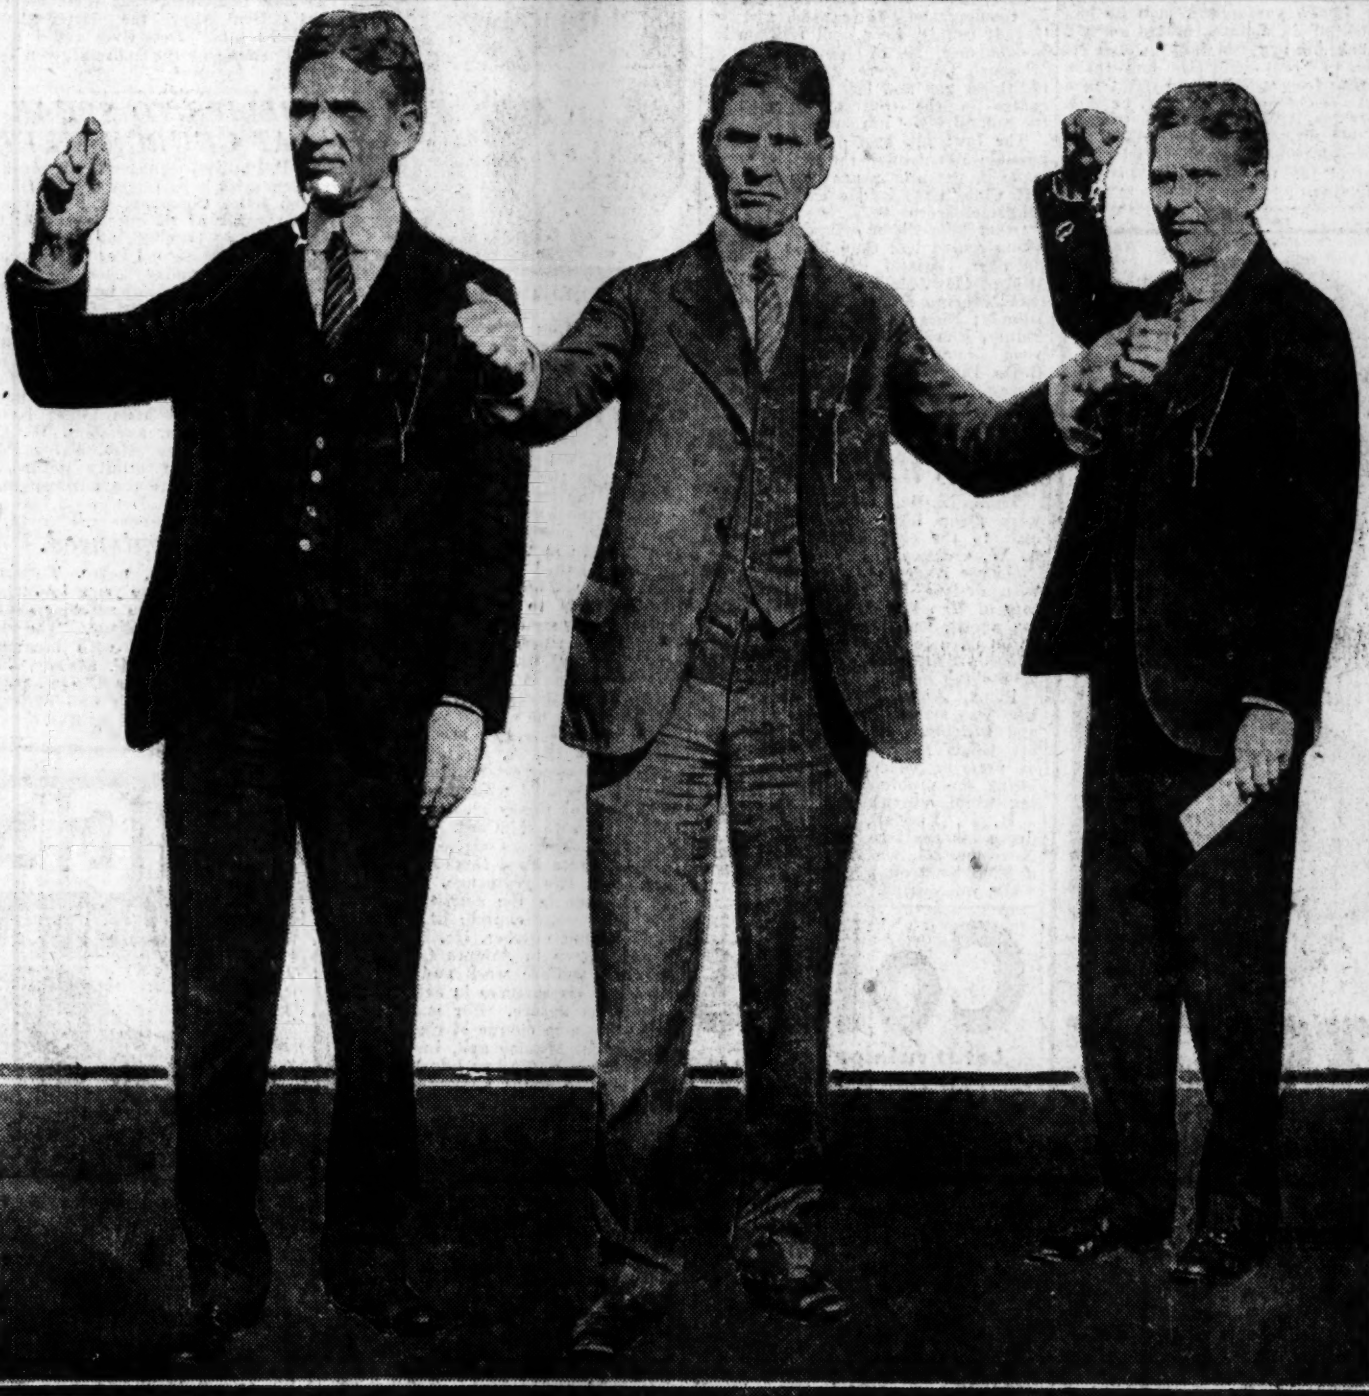

"I shall ask the department of justice to look into the latest report," Senator Harris said tonight, "and if any basis is found to exist for the complaints made to investigate the situation thoroughly and ask the proper indictments."

The law, passed by congress as a result of evidence unearthed by the old Brookhart investigating committee in the south, makes it a federal offense to solicit any contribution from a federal office holder when such contribution has a bearing on his appointment to office. It is the same statute under which John B. Dove, of Atlanta, was indicted a short time ago for soliciting contributions from federal office holders in the northern district of Georgia.

The fact that Davis is secretary of the official Georgia patronage committee has been pointed out here to look askance on any campaign with which he may be identified for the raising of funds that may have a political aspect. As viewed here, it would be embarrassing for any office holder to refuse a contribution—or to make a stock subscription—to some properties, depending on his ability to do so.

STATE'S REVENUE SHOWS DECREASE

Lower Valuation Due to Farm Decline, Harrison Reports.

Comptroller General William B. Harrison Tuesday released consolidated tax digests from all counties of the state showing a slight decrease in both assessed values and revenues over 1929.

Total valuations this year amounted to $1,087,228,062, which at the five-mill rate prescribed by law, would bring into the treasury $5,436,140.11. This compares with valuations of $1,192,211,657 in 1929 and collections of $5,922,983.88.

City property and the list in assessed valuations, the 1930 assessments amounting to $478,472,003, or $3,150,310 more than in 1929, when valuations were reported at $475,321,693.

In case of farm property, however, a drop was recorded, the 1930 figures being $297,600,760, compared with $302,358,425 last year. In 1929 $110,746 acres were assessed while in 1929 the acreage was reported at 35,420,217.

Other assessed valuations included the following:

	1930	1929
Trains	$30,742,713	$29,428,939
Automobiles	74,000,000	74,726,322
Manufacturing plants	36,138,854	36,210,961
Household goods	14,518,133	15,008,043
Horses and mules	6,210,908	6,170,762
Cattle	1,264,067	1,260,032
Hogs	5,884,906	5,954,363
Poultry	3,857,296	3,857,296

Allegation was made in the bill that the defendant attacked Long in a hotel, causing physical injuries, punitive damages, damage to reputation, mental pain and anguish, and damage to his profession. The attack was unprovoked, the bill asserted.

Crisp Introduces Bill To Cut Tariff Back To Old Schedule

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(Special.)—As an important legislative proposal which he believes the democratic leadership might well consider in determining its course of action for the next regular or possibly special session of congress, Representative Charles R. Crisp, of Georgia, has laid before the lower house a bill to revise the tariff by eliminating all the industrial rates of the recently enacted Smoot-Hawley act and going back to the prior Fordney-McCumber law.

The Crisp proposal, introduced coincident with the reconvening of congress, would retain only the agricultural sections of the much controverted Smoot-Hawley bill, which congress finally passed last June after a battle of more than 18 months.

In presenting it at this time, Representative Crisp, one of the ranking minority members of the house ways and means committee, had no hope of gaining consideration during the present session. His idea was, rather, to lay it before the democratic membership of the house and senate as a proposal for party legislative policy in the next session, when democrats through the aid of progressive elements, will be clearly in control, in so far as a working majority is concerned.

The results of the November elections have shown that it will not matter particularly which party organizes congress. Democrats, nevertheless, will exercise the whip hand. His bill embodies an idea that has engaged democratic attention generally since the recent campaign and subsequent democratic victory. More and more party leaders are getting around to the conviction that the tariff revision undertaken by the Hoover administration constitutes one of the prime causes of the current economic depression. It was foolishly policy for the administration to institute the disaster which followed by opening up the whole question at a time when this country was enjoying its greatest period of prosperity and when it was growing size as an object of envy for the rest of the world, they believe.

Accepting this view in its full measure, Representative Crisp is prepared to urge that the democratic party, represented with its increased numbers in the next congress, take a bold position for repeal of the obnoxious expenditures.

At the same time, he submitted a partial report asserting the expenditures for Davis and Francis Shunk Brown, who sought the governorship on the same ticket, would be well over $600,000.

However, the democratic steering committee just previously had considered the case and had unanimously decided not to oppose Davis "merely because the special committee may request further time to investigate the expenditures."

After the vote Nye said the investigation would proceed "as though nothing had happened."

"I am convinced," he said, "that the Davis-Brown ticket spent more than one million dollars in the primary campaign."

The vote came swiftly and unexpectedly. Only Nye's brief report and some parliamentary maneuvers precluded it. Nye first made an informal request that Davis step aside, but Senator Reed, senior senator from the Keystone State, objected and turned

SENATE GRANTS SEAT TO DAVIS

Nye's Motion to Delay Seating Lost by 58-to-27 Vote.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—James J. Davis stepped into the middle of the session's first big senate fracas today and emerged a few minutes later empowered to take the much-disputed seat of the junior senator from Pennsylvania.

Acting quickly, the senate rejected a resolution by Senator Nye, of North Dakota, demanding the oath of office be withheld and Davis, whose resignation as secretary of labor was accepted only today by President Hoover, was sworn in at once.

More than half of the democratic ballots were cast in favor of the former cabinet member, to give him a two-to-one vote. The count was 58 to 27.

Nye's objections were based upon the high cost of campaigning in Pennsylvania. He asked that Davis' credentials be referred to the special campaign funds investigating committee, of which he is chairman, while it inquires into new reports of expenditures in his primary campaign of last spring.

At the same time, he submitted a partial report asserting the expenditures for Davis and Francis Shunk Brown, who sought the governorship on the same ticket, would be well over $600,000.

However, the democratic steering committee just previously had considered the case and had unanimously decided not to oppose Davis "merely because the special committee may request further time to investigate the expenditures."

Tel-A-Papa Service To Relieve Anxiety

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Dr. Stork has a new tel-a-papa service.

Three months before the stork comes the anxious daddy-to-be can get an X-ray message revealing whether twins or triplets are on the way.

Dr. Maximilian J. Hubeny, former president, revealed this today at the Radiological Society convention here. Lives of many mothers are saved and use of diagnostic X-ray is rapidly increasing in obstetrical work, he said.

DEMOCRATS FIND LITTLE OF VALUE IN HOOVER IDEAS

Message to Congress Asks Huge Appropriation To Be Spent by Cabinet; Opposition Appears.

Text of Hoover's Message Appears on Page Six

BY WALTER K. WALKER.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(UN)—President Hoover reported to congress today on the state of the Union, devoting half of his annual message to the economic depression and proposing a fund of $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 to be spent by a cabinet committee in addition to increased public works.

A dozen bills designed to remedy business and agriculture were offered in congress as legislative remedies announced relief measures would be taken up as fast as they were ready.

But the democrats attacked many of Mr. Hoover's proposals, especially the proposal to give a cabinet committee a free hand in spending so large a sum. From a democrat also came a protest that the amount should be a billion dollars, and this critic, Senator Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma, introduced a resolution for a senate committee of 11 to superintend relief measures.

Mr. Hoover's message was cheerful, characterizing the depression as a passing phase and predicting the United States would lead the way up to prosperity.

"Our country is today stronger and richer in resources, in equipment, in skill, than ever in history," he said. He listed several business indexes comparing the last three months with the same period in 1929, showing department store sales were 83 per cent of the "peak" period, factory production 80 per cent, factory employment 84 per cent and wholesale prices 85 per cent. Retail prices only dropped 6 per cent, however, his figures showed—a little over one-third the wholesale drop.

Mr. Hoover urged action on Muscle Shoals without committing himself to any pending bill, his regulation, retraction, concerted courts, reorganization of the border patrol, railroad consolidation, regulation of interstate electric power, revision of immigration on a more limited basis. Bills for these are now pending before congress. He also asked for postoffice construction to substitute for leased buildings.

He said he would send up the Root-Hirst World Court formula to the senate in later message.

He praised the farm board and pointed to lower prices for farm products abroad as proof its activities were being carried on here.

$150,000,000 Asked.
Senator Otis Glenn, republican, Illinois, immediately after the message, introduced a bill to appropriate $150,000,000 to carry out the principal feature of the novel program. The measure, which he said would be introduced in the appropriation-originating house before it is brought up for a vote.

Glenn proposed that three cabinet members as a committee should be authorized to use this money in completing public works on projects authorized by congress but not fully appropriated for.

Representative Joseph W. Byrns, democrat, Tennessee, immediately attacked this proposal as "unfathomable" and asserted such powers have never been granted to the executive except in wartime. The budget bureau and congress should decide how the money is to be spent, he said.

Democratic Floor Leader John N. Garner also opposed the president's proposal, saying: "We know more about where that money is needed and how it should be spent than the president does."

Observer noted that as this expenditure was not included in the budget—and as a deficit of $180,000,000 this year is already in sight—such an expenditure would increase the "red ink" entry next June 30 to perhaps $230,000,000 unless unforeseen resources come in.

Senator Pat Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, said the resume of economic conditions by Mr. Hoover was "an alibi that is ridiculous" because he failed to blame "the Hoover-Grundy tariff that provoked and

SLASH PROPOSER CALLS ON VOTERS TO RALLY TO CAUSE

League of Women Voters and Fulton High Meeting Hear Strong Address by Atlanta Mayor-Elect.

CANDIDATE LIST REDUCED TO 39

Howard C. McCutcheon, Second Ward Nominee, Latest to Retire; 32 Ballot Boxes Open Today.

Asserting that Atlanta's future as the seat of a righteous, honest and efficient municipal government hangs in the balance, before a jury of 25,401 voters in today's referendum on a proposal to slash the number of wards from 13 to 6 and council from a cumbersome body of 39 to 18, Mayor-Elect James L. Key, author of the program, Tuesday delivered two strong addresses calling on voters to rally to the cause.

In a ringing appeal Tuesday night the mayor-elect, proponent of the reform plan, which grew out of the municipal probe by the Fulton county grand jury, urged voters to visit the polls and cast their ballots in the election.

He expressed confidence of the result if the "clean-thinking" people of Atlanta are sufficiently interested to cast their ballots, but warned that defeat will be experienced by the plan unless there is a "representative vote."

Earlier in the day he spoke at a gathering of the Atlanta League of Women Voters at the Chamber of Commerce building.

Election of Councilmen.
In addition to balloting on the proposed slashes, voters will select nine members of council from 39 candidates and formally elect officials to serve in 21 uncontested posts.

Howard C. McCutcheon, nominee from the second ward, under indictment as a result of the graft probe, formally withdrew Tuesday, when he issued a statement declaring he would not serve if elected.

L. P. Loyd, an aspirant for the third ward councilmanic post, stated today he could not continue in the race. Previously there was a field of 41 candidates, but the two withdrawals cut the number of actual contestants to 39.

Corruption Scored.
"Atlanta stands shamed and disgraced before other municipalities of the nation because of the corrupt conditions existing in the borough government," Mr. Key declared.

"The very fact that there are also vacancies in the borough government is an appalling condition. A third of the old council is either already sentenced to serve on the chain gang or on their way there."

In addition, the borough government

STATE SCHOOL BOARD TO DISCUSS FINANCES

Napier Ruling Expected To Precipitate Debate Today.

The question of whether the money the legislature authorized the state treasurer to pay to the public schools is an obligation against the state, or only an "unpaid appropriation," as Attorney-General George M. Napier has ruled, is expected to precipitate a lively session for the state board of education here today.

The board, with Governor Hardman as chairman, is to convene in the executive offices this morning and the following members, in addition to M. L. Duggan, its executive officer, in attendance: W. B. Harris County Jury Wants Regulation of Common Carriers on Highways.

HAMILTON, Ga., Dec. 2.—Legislative regulation of trucks and other common carriers on highways of Georgia has been urged by members of the Harris county grand jury, it was revealed today.

A letter, signed by B. B. Pearson, foreman of the jury, and sent to State Senator A. C. Alexander, of Waverly Hall, and Representative H. C. Kimbrough, of Chipley, points out that heavy tonnage destroys the efficiency of the highways and that some remedial legislation should be sought to take care of the situation.

The grand jury members recommended taxation of operators of busses and trucks. The text of the letter follows:

"We, the members of the grand jury of Harris superior court, being impressed with the justice and necessity of conserving our highways and protecting the taxpayers, including the railroads of said county, after a careful discussion and consideration of the matter, have unanimously concluded that it is imperative, as a matter of fairness and common sense, that there should be some legislative regulation of trucks and other common carriers now operating upon the highways of our state.

"The carriers, both inter-state and intra-state, now using the public highways are carrying without expense to them enormous tonnage such as is calculated to soon wear out and destroy the efficiency of said highways. There should be passed some remedial legislation to take care of this situation.

"Tonnage should be limited to a reasonable weight, such as the highways can bear without excessive wear and destruction; taxes, in the form of a license tax, or other efficient scheme of taxation, should be levied against the operators of busses and trucks.

"In realization of this necessity, we are addressing to you this communication, with the unanimous request that you introduce at the next session of the general assembly a bill to cover the above suggestions.

LAW TO LIMIT WEIGHT OF ROAD TRUCKS ASKED

Harris County Jury Wants Regulation of Common Carriers on Highways.

HAMILTON, Ga., Dec. 2.—Legislative regulation of trucks and other common carriers on highways of Georgia has been urged by members of the Harris county grand jury, it was revealed today.

A letter, signed by B. B. Pearson, foreman of the jury, and sent to State Senator A. C. Alexander, of Waverly Hall, and Representative H. C. Kimbrough, of Chipley, points out that heavy tonnage destroys the efficiency of the highways and that some remedial legislation should be sought to take care of the situation.

The grand jury members recommended taxation of operators of busses and trucks. The text of the letter follows:

"We, the members of the grand jury of Harris superior court, being impressed with the justice and necessity of conserving our highways and protecting the taxpayers, including the railroads of said county, after a careful discussion and consideration of the matter, have unanimously concluded that it is imperative, as a matter of fairness and common sense, that there should be some legislative regulation of trucks and other common carriers now operating upon the highways of our state.

"The carriers, both inter-state and intra-state, now using the public highways are carrying without expense to them enormous tonnage such as is calculated to soon wear out and destroy the efficiency of said highways. There should be passed some remedial legislation to take care of this situation.

"Tonnage should be limited to a reasonable weight, such as the highways can bear without excessive wear and destruction; taxes, in the form of a license tax, or other efficient scheme of taxation, should be levied against the operators of busses and trucks.

"In realization of this necessity, we are addressing to you this communication, with the unanimous request that you introduce at the next session of the general assembly a bill to cover the above suggestions.

KINSHIP OF JUDGE HALTS ROME TRIAL

ROME, Ga., Dec. 2.—Trial of C. A. Todd, Sr., acting chairman of the Floyd county board of roads and revenues, was ordered a mistrial today after it was discovered that Judge James Maddox, presiding, is a second cousin of Todd's wife. The charges against the commissioner were made in practice in office.

After the state had completed its case, his relationship to the defendant by marriage was called to the attention of Judge Maddox.

Judge Maddox then ordered a mistrial, although the defense agreed to waive his disqualification.

Corpse Sent on Long Trip To Save Money

MACON, Ga., Dec. 2.—(P)—A round-trip ticket to Detroit for a corpse is one Macon negro's idea of economy. The corpse was a negro woman with seven children in Detroit, all of whom naturally wished to see the body.

She died in Macon, and they thought she should be buried in Macon. Yet the children should see the body—and there were seven of them. Her brother-in-law here went to the ticket office of the Macon terminal and asked for a round-trip ticket for a corpse to Detroit.

"Why a round trip?" they asked him, amazed.

"Well," he explained, "it costs less than having all them children come down here."

SABOTAGE BARED AT TREASON TRIAL

Witnesses Taken From
Jails To Verify Charges Against Engineers.

MOSCOW, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Out from soviet jails came witnesses tonight to confirm the extensive sabotage activities of eight engineers on trial for their lives.

The three prisoners were brought into court under a heavy guard and a red soldier with a loosened pistol holster stood nearby as they testified. Although somewhat pale from their confinement, the prisoners appeared well fed and showed no indications of harsh treatment on the part of the secret police to induce them to testify.

Further details of the extensive sabotage were given by the witnesses. Peter Krasovsky, a former engineer connected with the commissariat of railways, now serving a ten-year sentence for counter-revolutionary activities; Vladimir Sirotskiy, a former member of the planning commission of the supreme economic council, awaiting trial for similar activities; and S. Michaleenko, a minor member of the industrial party, also awaiting trial.

Earlier in the day the defendants themselves had again taken the stand and told of espionage work for officers of the French general staff and of graft collected by the engineers in connection with the plot to overthrow the government.

Information of the soviet's new industries, they said, was transmitted to France through three mysterious French agents in Moscow identified only by the initials "K," "A" and "R."

As for the graft, Sergei Kupriyanov, one of the defendants, said the group with which he was associated got 50,000 rubles in one year as a rake-off from foreign concerns in the purchase of cotton machinery.

Mayflower Sails To Panama Waters

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(UP)—The last Mayflower, decommissioned last year by President Hoover after serving his predecessors for 27 years, was called out of retirement today to cruise the swamps of Panama.

Flying a simple commission pennant in place of the regal presidential ensign, the trim little ship will steam down to the Caribbean sea where she first saw service as a naval vessel, during the Spanish-American War.

The Mayflower will relieve the U. S. Niagara as the survey ship of the navy hydrographic office. It will patrol the swampy, jungle-bound coast of Panama setting out stakes and charting the treacherous coastline. The yacht was ordered recommissioned today by the navy and is expected to be ready for her new duty about February 15.

Devoting most of the day to the chase of cotton machinery. In the old days, he said, the engineers never got any graft as the higher-ups collected it before it trickled down to the factory.

Much of the graft, he said, came from American concerns, and there was a system whereby white Russians abroad got 1 per cent and the anti-soviet engineers 4 per cent.

HINES ASKS CONGRESS FOR POLICY ON VETS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Frank T. Hines asked congress today to measure the load it has placed upon the veterans' bureau.

In his annual report to a discussion of some of the new burdens imposed by recent veterans' legislation, the administrator requested a definition of future policies for giving relief to veterans who receive disabilities outside service.

Although the government has more than enough hospital beds for veterans injured in service, he said, new applications for hospitalization are being connected with disabilities were bringing a constantly increasing pressure.

With a potential load of 4,000,000 veterans, he said, "it is apparent to what proportions this may extend if it is to be the policy . . . to give non-service connected cases a mandatory right . . . to hospitalization."

Additional facilities would be required, he continued, and preliminary studies "indicate a future obligation which far overshadows our whole experience to date because of congressional provision for hospitalization of veterans of all wars in need of treatment 'regardless of the origin of their disabilities.'"

Hines recommended further development of a veterans' employment service, citing the action of congress in launching this work in co-operation with the department of labor with a $25,000 appropriation. He said facilities have been established in 18 states and $100,000 was available for this year's work.

Expansion of the bureau's activities because of the provision for payment of disability allowance was predicted. Hines said the bureau's work in civil life and it is anticipated its application will develop . . . into one of the bureau's most administrative undertakings," he said.

Consolidation of governmental relief activities, as authorized last July, was predicted. Hines said the bureau's work in civil life and it is anticipated its application will develop . . . into one of the bureau's most administrative undertakings," he said.

The necessity for expanding hospitalization facilities, he said, was shown in about 10 per cent more applications for admission. The building program was a "wonderful" one, he said, and approximately 9,000 beds will be added, he said.

More than 31,000 beds were available for 17,000 veterans disabled in action, and approximately 9,000 beds will be added, he said.

He said he received a letter from Weaver today indicating the bill "primarily was a Davis bill."

Davis, in a statement said: "Pennsylvania now has her full complement of senators and representatives. For myself, I can say there will be full co-operation with the senior senator and with the 36 members of the house from our state."

The roll call on the Nye resolution follows:

Republicans: Blaine, Couzens, Curtis, Dale, Frasier, Howell, Norbeck, Norris, and Nye.

ENGLAND FEARS SPREAD OF STRIKE

Scotland Must Have Help
in Coal Struggle, Says
Union Head.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Fear ran high tonight that the strike in the Scottish coal fields will spread throughout the coal fields of Great Britain.

"Scotland cannot be left alone in the struggle," said A. J. Cook, powerful secretary of the miners' federation.

His statement was made after receipt of word from Glasgow that a conference of miners' leaders it was decided the strike should continue.

Another disquieting fact was that delegates from Ayrshire, where the men have continued at work, promised to endeavor to bring the miners in their area in line with the strikers.

The next important step in the situation as a whole is expected Thursday when a conference of national union delegates meets in London. At the Glasgow meeting it was decided to place the position of the Scottish miners before the conference.

The national conference on Thursday said Cook, "must do something to support it. That question is for Thursday's conference to decide."

He expressed the opinion that because a national general strike would be called a vote would have to be taken of all mine workers in the British coal fields.

The principal point of issue is the hours of work, the miners objecting to the proposition of the owners that they should work a flat seven and one-half-hour day. The owners contend the only alternative to the 90-hour or greater system, is a reduction in wages.

At the Glasgow conference today a modification of the spreader system was reported to have been offered by the owners. Under this plan the owners would agree to pay the scale wage scale for one week, during which no miner would be called upon to work more than 11 eight-hour days in two weeks.

Nye countered, however, with his resolution and when Reed asked that it go over a day under the rules, Vice President Curtis ruled it was a matter of special privilege and could be considered immediately. The roll call followed.

William R. Douglas and George F. Weaver, of Philadelphia, were summoned to appear before the committee tomorrow. Douglas is secretary of the Pennsylvania Citizens' Committee, and was associated in the Davis-Brown campaign with Samuel Vaulrain, treasurer of one of the campaign committees.

To Be Questioned.

He will be questioned regarding the report made to the secretary of state by Pennsylvania Senator Reed, of Lancaster, showing expenditures totaling $185,000 more than the $129,000 reported to the Nye committee two weeks earlier.

Weaver is an attorney who says he represents a client with an unpaid bill of $74,000 against the Davis-Brown cause.

Nye said he received a letter from Weaver today indicating the bill "primarily was a Davis bill."

Davis, in a statement said: "Pennsylvania now has her full complement of senators and representatives. For myself, I can say there will be full co-operation with the senior senator and with the 36 members of the house from our state."

'89ers Again Rush For Oklahoma Land

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The homesteaded spirit of 1889 marched again today in Oklahoma City.

Led by an '89er, a group of individuals staged a second "run" for land in the shadows of the downtown skyscraper district.

The objective this time, however, was not a "quarter section" upon which to throw up a shanty home, but the $7,000,000 strip of land in the business district abandoned by the Rock Island railroad in the removal of its passenger station and downtown tracks.

The Rock Island and Frisco are building a new joint station in the outskirts of the city.

That which was paid the Rock Island $4,000,000 for the choice business property means little to the would-be homesteaders, led by Charles C. Bartlett, who was a deputy United States marshal back in 1889, when Oklahoma was opened to settlement and who obtained city lots by staking them out then.

Bartlett's position is that the railroad, which obtained its right-of-way from the government, lost title by abandoning it. He contends that the strip—about a half block wide and five blocks long—has reverted to the government as part of the original homestead grant of 100 acres and is open for entry under an old act of congress.

Mr. Hoover sets forth the needs and requirements of the people and government at this time completely and I regard the statement as wise and statesmanlike," Watson said.

The democratic leader, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, expressed doubt as to whether the statement was wise and statesmanlike. Watson said.

Representative Phipps, republican, Colorado, regarded the message as "a thing to be encouraged to the people generally," but an Iowa republican, Senator Brookhart, said he should be given agriculture generally and not restricted to drought sections.

Representative O'Connor, of New York, a leader of the Tammany delegation, also found fault with the message in that three of the five pieces of legislation the president recommended finishing "relate to attempts to enforce the unenforceable experiment—prohibition."

HOUSE OF LORDS
CENSURES LABOR

LONDON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—After three hours of debate the House of Lords tonight defeated the labor government 74 votes to 10 and censured it for its attitude at the imperial conference.

"This house deprecates the refusal of his majesty's government to respond to the advances made by the prime ministers of the dominions toward closer fiscal relations, the motion of censure ran, "and his house condemns the failure of the government to grasp the opportunity of strengthening the ties which bind the several parts of the empire."

"Resign," ironically called out a conservative peer when the vote was announced. But that provoked only a smile from the labor bench, for government defeats are frequent in the House of Lords because of the scarcity of labor peers and do not connote resignation.

CONGRESS' REACTIONS TO MESSAGE VARY

Party Leaders Differ Sharply on Merits of Address.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Many and varied expressions of opinion were heard on Capitol hill today after President Hoover's annual message had been read to congress.

Speaker Longworth termed the president's review of business conditions "very encouraging," and said he was "very interested" in the whole "very interesting" document.

Representative Garner, the democratic floor leader, said the chief executive should have explained just where and how he proposed the emergency unemployment appropriation of $150,000,000 should be spent.

"If he expects to get that much money," he added, "he will have to show that he is going to do with it."

Senator Tilton, republican leader, said he thought the message "admirable in all respects," but regretted the president's decision to send the World Court protocols to the senate at this time.

Representative Phipps, republican, Colorado, regarded the message as "a thing to be encouraged to the people generally," but an Iowa republican, Senator Brookhart, said he should be given agriculture generally and not restricted to drought sections.

Representative O'Connor, of New York, a leader of the Tammany delegation, also found fault with the message in that three of the five pieces of legislation the president recommended finishing "relate to attempts to enforce the unenforceable experiment—prohibition."

NEW MEASURES BULGE
CONGRESS' CALENDAR

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The legislative boundary lines charted by President Hoover for unemployment and drought relief were well-trodden today by legislators as they carried proposals far outside the bounds prescribed in the presidential message.

Relief plans made up a large portion of the legislative proposals in the senate, where introduction of bills was in order for the first time.

Senators introduced 322 bills and a dozen resolutions, touching on subjects ranging from prohibition to bridges and private relief measures.

The president's message had hardly been read before Senator Glenn, republican, Illinois, introduced a bill to carry out his recommendations for an emergency unemployment relief fund of $150,000,000 to speed up public construction.

The money would be spent on public works already authorized under the direction of a cabinet committee appointed by the president.

Bills by Chairman Keyes, of the senate public buildings committee, and Chairman Elliott, of the similar house committee, would allow the treasury to award contracts for public buildings without competitive bidding in the interest of speed. They also would authorize the employment of private technical experts to speed up plans.

Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, proposed to increase appropriations for roads from $125,000,000 to $500,000,000 annually during 1932 and 1933.

Three senators, Robinson, democrat, Arkansas; McNary, republican, Oregon, presented bills to authorize $60,000,000 for seed and feed loans. President Hoover proposed such a fund, but did not suggest the amount.

Robinson's bill would authorize the president to distribute the entire $60,000,000 in seed and feed loans to 184 institutions and hospitals.

Senator Jones, republican, Washington, offered a bill to appropriate $1,000,000 for seed and feed loans in his own state and Senator King, democrat, Utah, proposed to increase road appropriations in national parks from $5,000,000 to $7,500,000 annually.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE REPORTS $6,875 SPENT

Figures Submitted to Campaign Committee Don't Include State Spending.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Edward B. Dunford, treasurer of the Anti-Saloon League campaign committee, informed the senate campaign funds committee today the league had received $6,875 for political purposes in the 1930 election campaigns.

Dunford said a balance of $983 existed, but unpaid bills probably would remove it. In the primary campaign, Dunford listed receipts of $8,029 from 650 contributors and expenditures of $8,221.

Dunford said the funds did not include money spent by state anti-saloon leagues. He promised Chairman Nye to obtain all the figures possible.

The league sent $1,200 into states where there were wet and dry contests, including $200 to Delaware to be used for Senator Hastings, republican, who defeated former Senator Bayard, democrat.

A total of $1,144 was sent to Montana for use in the republican primary of O. P. Shelley against Judge Albert J. Galen.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Crime reports received by the department of justice from 11 Georgia cities for October showed a total of only 425 offenses reported to police. This was one of the lowest averages reported from any state.

Savannah, with 173 crimes, including three murders, three cases of aggravated assault, 21 burglaries, 126 larcenies and 20 stolen automobiles, submitted the highest total of any of the reporting cities.

The total of all crimes of other reporting cities showed Macon next with 71, including three murders, followed by Augusta with 59, Columbus 48, Valdosta 31, Brunswick 14, Athens 12, Americus 6, Griffin 5, Quitman 4 and Milledgeville 2, one of which was larceny under $50 and the other an automobile theft.

The Georgia figures were included in the totals from every state in which 879 cities reported. Robbery was shown to have been decidedly on the upgrade since June, closely followed by burglaries, of which there were three times as many. The total of all crimes for October showed slight increase over September.

Smoot-Hawley act, going back to the former law as a basis of further changes that may be necessary.

Aside from the agricultural rates, one of the provisions Representative Crisp would insist upon is the proposal put forward by Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, while the bill was before the upper chamber, "sitting for the creation of an office of consumers' counsel, an official charged with representing the interests of the consumer in all rate deliberations of the tariff commission."

Senator George, along with other democrats of the upper chamber, known to share the feelings of Representative Crisp on the tariff situation and may be expected to support a commitment from his party associates on the policy.

Algers Gets Rain After Six Months

ALGERS, Dec. 2.—(UP)—The first rain since June fell over Algeria today, breaking an unusual drought.

It was estimated that 20 per cent of the country's live stock died during the dry spell of thirst or lack of forage. Dates and other fruits and vegetables, especially potatoes, wilted before ripening. The rain, it was feared, had come too late to save the crops.

POWER OFFICIALS TO TESTIFY TODAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Officials of the Georgia Power Company, including President Preston S. Arkwright and Frank E. Shumate, vice president and general counsel, are expected to take the stand tomorrow in the hearings opened by the federal commission today on the financial structure of the company. The hearings are being conducted as a part of the general inquiry the commission is making into the affairs of utility companies.

In addition to Arkwright and Shumate, the commission is preparing to receive testimony also from L. K. Starr, former public relations manager, and E. H. Griffin, of the Georgia company. All four are from Atlanta. Findings of the commission later will be incorporated in a broad report on the subject to be submitted to congress.

Testifying before Commissioner Edgar A. McCulloch, in charge of the proceedings, Carl H. Dupue, accountant-examiner for the commission, asserted that the transfer of common stock of the Georgia Railway & Power Co. to the Southeastern Power & Light Co. in 1926 was accompanied by a write-up of $28,713,690 in the value of the Georgia company's stocks.

Prior to the transfer, he said, the stock of the Georgia company had been carried on its books at $115 per share, while the parent company, following the transfer, recorded the stock at a value of $230 a share. Translated into dollars, Mr. Dupue stated that the book value of the stocks, securities and properties of the Georgia Railway & Power Co., a predecessor of the Georgia Power Company, was $114,508,505.02 in 1926 before the transfer and that in the transfer the common stock was valued at $57,427,320, or $28,713,690 more than the valuation on the books of the Georgia company.

SELLING OF STOCK IN G. O. P. WEEKLY UNDER SCRUTINY

postmaster-general and Senator Harris have determined to have a full investigation of complaints.

IGNORANT OF COMPLAINT HENRY DAVIS ASSERTS

Henry C. Davis, secretary of the Georgia company, a committee member and publisher of the Georgia Republican, political weekly named in complaints made to Postmaster General Brown and United States Senator Harris, said Tuesday night that he had been offering stock to "anybody who wants to buy it."

Davis said he knew nothing of any complaint about his stock solicitation and that letters sent out from his office recently were a part of a campaign to raise money for the Georgia Republican. Only one letter, he said, had been solicited and he would not say whether the letters had been mailed to officeholders and office seekers.

"Anybody can buy stock in anything he wants to buy it, can't he?" Davis parried in answer to a direct question as to whether postmasters of the office had been solicited to buy stock.

The Georgia Republican last week printed its tenth consecutive weekly issue, Davis said, and has been gaining subscriptions since the first number. He said it was organized "to defeat the republican party of Georgia."

Lindsey Hopkins, of Atlanta, is chairman of the patronage committee which is generally understood to have the support of the Roosevelt wing of the Georgia G. O. P. Other members are H. O. Lovorn, of Carroll; E. A. Henry, of Augusta; G. C. Dekle, of Milledgeville; I. H. Fetty, of Savannah, and John D. Taylor, of Summerville.

SCHOOL SURVEY ALMOST READY

Results Will Be Used in Revising Courses, Dr. William J. Cooper Says.

The most comprehensive survey of high and junior high schools in the United States is nearing completion and will be ready for use in revising the courses of study and method of instruction for the next year, Dr. William J. Cooper, federal commissioner of education, informed the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States in convention at the Biltmore hotel Tuesday afternoon.

This survey, Dr. Cooper reported, was launched during the administration of Commissioner John J. Tigert and carried on since he assumed Dr. Tigert's duties to such an extent that when concluded it will embrace a close analysis of every problem confronting the secondary schools, educator, pupil and parent of pupil.

"We have found hopes that many of the cumbersome problems which have proven barriers to teachers, students and the parents of students will be eliminated and a much smoother system of education will be worked out for our high and junior high schools," Dr. Cooper asserted in his address, which developed into a report of his stewardship and a general outline of the duties of the commissioner of education and his office.

Dr. Cooper pointed out that the office of education served approximately the same purpose to the school world as the department of commerce served to the commercial world.

Dr. Cooper's address climaxed the first sessions of the association which is holding its thirty-fifth annual meeting. The meeting will continue through until Friday. Noted educators from all over the south are in attendance upon the sessions.

DEMOCRATS FIND LITTLE OF VALUE IN HOOVER IDEAS

assured the economic debacle," Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, said Mr. Hoover failed to interpret the meaning of his own words and outlined no constructive program.

Speaker Nicholas Longworth said the message was "very encouraging" and that Mr. Hoover had shown that he thought it "proposed to do everything that can be done."

Longworth summoned his republican steering committee and they decided to go ahead with appropriation bills, taking up unemployment relief measures, which they are ready. There is no discussion of Muscle Shoals legislation or the lame duck constitutional amendments, action on which has been demanded by a special session of congress.

Mr. Hoover's proposal for further limitation of immigration was put into drastic form by Senator David A. Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, who introduced a measure to suspend immigration for two years. Mr. Hoover's recommendation was general in terms and did not limit the number of immigrants who would be admitted.

Senator Thomas, who also took the floor to explain his plans, charged the president with "unemployment." As against Mr. Hoover's April census figure of 2,500,000 out of work and another 1,000,000 ordinarily "between jobs," Thomas said the figure was 1,000,000 out of work and another 1,000,000 ordinarily "between jobs."

Senator Smith W. Brookhart, republican, Iowa, who has proposed $1,000,000,000 federal fund for road building, addressed an argument to the senate in behalf of the highway bill, having the government advance dollar for every dollar spent by the states on roads, secondary as well as primary highways.

Senator John Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, introduced a bill to create a federal industrial commission of five members with $12,000 salaries, to aid in stabilization of employment by making surveys of various fields to prepare for legislation. The object would be to create conditions under which workers would get a "saving" and investors reasonable dividends.

Many other senators commented on the manifold proposals of the message, but the comment generally was along party lines, democrats critical and republicans speaking in praise.

Senator Leader Joseph Robinson, of the democrats, said the message "discloses a comprehensive study of the unemployment situation, but it is doubtful if the account of unemployment given is correct. Exceptional conditions, he added, call for "liberal and extraordinary remedies."

ment will open next year with a shortage of nearly $750,000. The treasury has been plundered and pillaged. "School teachers, 1,200 of them, will not receive their December pay before Christmas. Do you wonder that we have a plan to change?"

"Council is too large. Representative government has gone, and I am trying to restore it again by establishing wards which are truly representative."

"I am unalterably opposed to the commission form of government. It was a bad several years ago, but its effectiveness has been brought seriously in question. Its desirability is being mooted."

"I know that this proposed change is opposed by those who have profited, and will expect to profit by a corrupt government in operation which they do not wish reorganized. They have their plans of graduating from one office to another, which they do not want upset."

"But the voters of Atlanta should realize that while the present government is in operation, it is the end of the matter. If they are disappointed, then he makes another nomination and continues to make nominations until he secures the approval of his committee, and that is the end of the matter."

Following are the unopposed nominees of the United States circuit court of appeals for the fifth district to hold sessions each year in Atlanta and other cities in addition to regular sessions at New Orleans, headquarters for the court.

Under the proposed legislation, the court would confine its sessions to New Orleans, Atlanta, Montgomery and Fort Worth would be eliminated. The judicial conference, which is composed of the senior circuit judges in each judicial circuit, at its annual meeting in Washington in October, 1930, recommended that this change be made so as to require the holding of sessions of the circuit court of appeals for the fifth circuit at New Orleans only.

AVIATRIX BLAMES UNEXPECTED WIND

Mrs. Keith-Miller Makes Statement Concerning Flight Mishap.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 2.—(UP)—Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller was blown eastward from her house by an unexpected and stiff west wind which forced her to land at the island of Andros in the Bahamas, John Liggett, III, told the United Press tonight on his return from Nassau and an interview with the Australian woman flyer.

Liggett accompanied Captain W. N. Lancaster, Mrs. Miller's technical adviser, to Nassau by plane today, where Lancaster and Mrs. Miller returned to Andros to resume her flight. They are expected to fly to Miami tomorrow.

Mrs. Miller gave the following account of her experience: "I am most unhappy about myself. As an experienced flyer I feel ashamed to think I failed to reach my objective. The kindness of the natives in Andros and the people of the Bahamas will ever be a happy memory to me. Those who suggested that I might, for publicity purposes, do such a thing are despicable. I hope that my reputation as a sportswoman is good enough to refuse such an attempt."

"Contrary to reports that were current, I took off with a favorable weather report and flew on the compass course which was in absolute conformity for one hour. At the end of that time a terrific gale from the west carried me far to the east. I was carried over the water and heavy storm clouds hung overhead. I went down close to the water. Two fishing boats were anchored in smooth water below. These I circled, hoping the men on board could indicate the direction to Miami. The colored crew did not comprehend my intentions. I was very stiff and continued my course, saw land and thought it was Florida, as my map tallied with the surrounding country."

"The gas was running low and I had to land. I came down without apparent harm. I walked 16 miles to the telegraph station at Mangrove Cay to let everyone know I was safe. But I found the wires were not working. The sea was too rough for any boat to leave for Nassau, the nearest point of communication, so I had to delay until storm abated."

Liggett said Mrs. Miller was uninjured when her plane pancaked down among the low bushes on Andros and that she was very stiff from her long haul on the island. A fisherman named Cavell, an Australian world's champion swimmer about 27 years ago, took Mrs. Miller to Nassau in his boat.

STEPHENS ASKS N. O. COURT ONLY

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 2.—(Special).—In keeping with a recommendation made by the attorney general in his report to congress, Senator Hubert D. Stephens, of Mississippi, today introduced a bill to repeal that section of the judicial code requiring the United States circuit court of appeals for the fifth district to hold sessions each year in Atlanta and other cities in addition to regular sessions at New Orleans, headquarters for the court.

Under the proposed legislation, the court would confine its sessions to New Orleans, Atlanta, Montgomery and Fort Worth would be eliminated. The judicial conference, which is composed of the senior circuit judges in each judicial circuit, at its annual meeting in Washington in October, 1930, recommended that this change be made so as to require the holding of sessions of the circuit court of appeals for the fifth circuit at New Orleans only.

The Other Bullet

By Nancy Barr Mavity

INSTALLMENT IX.

"Maybe you think we're jealous of her city ways—her high-heeled shoes and her beauty-parlor hair and her finger nails that make you blink to look at 'em. But it ain't just that, though I will say she seems to me about as far from useful as any human could get, and about as free. One woman folk ain't like that. They know how to put on rubber boots and go out to help corral the sheep in bad weather, and how to bring the lamb in and feed 'em out of a bottle in the kitchen when their mothers die. They can bring a baby into the world, too, if a woman's time comes on her before the doctor gets there.

"Maybe they have their hands in dishwater too much to cultivate them shiny nails, and they haven't the time to go down to the city every week to get a hair cut. Since hobbin's come in fashion, our own Haintown barber gives them just what they want, for 35 cents. But there's some of our girls—plain, maybe you'd think 'em—that come in from the hills in the spring, with their arms full o' wild current blossoms, or maybe in the winter with snow in their wet hair, and they look plumb beautiful to me."

"—see. There was no smile in Peter's gray eyes. He really did see, behind the older man's words, the harsh, hidden poetry of the old and earthly hills.

"No, you don't!" The sheriff's words cracked sharply, as Peter had heard them crack once or twice the night before.

"It ain't just that she's different. It's that she's different—and worse. She never exchanged recipes with any of our women. Likely she don't know no recipes, unless maybe it's one for a beauty lotion, and I guess she gets even them made up at the city stores at fancy prices.

"But Mrs. Cook—she works on the place—she's told about some of the books in them book cases. They're books that, if we found 'em in the town library, we'd take 'em out and burn 'em. And she goes out on the street, right in the face of everybody, puffing her smoke out of one of them long holders, not caring if even the children see her."

Peter pulled a crumpled package of tobacco out of his pocket and slowly lit his pipe.

"You said last night you'd never met her before," he observed with a quizzical lift of the eyebrow. "But you seem to know quite a lot about her habits. Didn't you go to bed at all? Did you spend all night sending telegrams and taking fingerprints and passing the whole town for information about Mrs. Everett?"

"I didn't have to. I've seen her often enough, and I know a lot more than I've seen. You don't have to be introduced to a person to get a line on them. If it wasn't more or less my business to know what goes on in Haintown and roundabout, I wouldn't have held the job of sheriff for 30 years."

"And for these things," Peter said softly, puffing at his pipe, "you would hang her for murder?"

"For these things," the sheriff repeated, with the firmness of the giant hills behind his driving voice, "if she killed Don Morrison, her pretty face ain't going to save her. She'll swing for it."

"Gosh!" Peter exclaimed wrathfully. "I wish I were twins!"

"What's happened to your vocabulary?" Barbara glanced across at him with the upturned elvish smile which made her look like a mischievous little girl. "That's the mildest expletive you've used for the last hour."

After a diligent search by which Peter had mobilized Jake Carter, who had removed his feet from the verandah railing with a sorrowful but good-natured grunt in response to the reporter's urgency, and roundabout, I unearthed a battered portable typewriter.

It had on old-fashioned, non-standard keyboard which sent Peter's little finger slipping into space at the edges. Several of the keys lacked caps, and just up sharp, unguarded spikes. The type caught in the holes of the ragged, faded ribbon, and when Peter assayed his usual rattling tempo, the result was a hopeless jam.

Peter had addressed this decrepit instrument with bursts of lurid and withering profanity which should have brought a blush to Barbara's cheek. But Barbara was not the blushing kind. He pushed the machine from him and surveyed it with a baleful glare, gathering up the sheets of cheap tablet paper which strewn the floor around him and correcting them with his stub of black copy pencil.

"If ever I'm such a fool again as to go anywhere without copy paper, so help me," he exclaimed with violent disregard of syntax.

"I thought this was supposed to be your vacation," Barbara said slyly. "But I've got to drive over ten miles of mountain road to file this stuff, and distinct hunches to follow out, before they get cold on me. My God, I wish that cameraman was here!"

"Well, he won't be, till the afternoon train," Barbara said practically. "Meanwhile, you're not twins, but at least you're married. I'm your better half, aren't I?"

Peter stared at the small, slim figure beside him. In her tweed knicker and flannel shirt, Barbara looked like a half-grown boy.

"Don't be silly," he said sternly. "You know how temperamental Bossy is, and she hasn't any brakes to speak of. That road was laid out by an engineer with an obsession for pretzels. It's about as wide as a piece of macaroni, and as rutty as a waffle iron."

"How culinary you are!" Again Barbara favored him with her sideways, tilted smile, but her brown eyes were grave. "It's a big story, Peter, and you've got to get busy on it," she said softly. "I'm not a clinging vine, you know—I'm a newspaperman's wife."

It was the hint of pride in the last words that decided Peter. He laid his two hands on her shoulders and looked deep into her steady eyes. "Barbara, there's real danger in driving to Bossy over that road, for anybody but me. She's a wreck of a car, and you know it. I can manage her because I know every quirk of her crazy engine. I'm sending you into danger, Barbara."

"Yes," Barbara nodded, looking more than ever like a wide-eyed child. "If there wasn't a little danger in your job sometimes, you wouldn't like it so well, would you?"

"But for you?"

"I'm not so different, old dear. And we've got to get our story, haven't we?"

The pronoun brought a tender smile to Peter's lips.

"All right, go ahead," he said briskly. "Remember, send it day press rate, collect. Make as good time as you can, and be careful. If anything happened to you—"

"I know. We haven't got time for another course on this story," Barbara said gallily, as she took the hand and thrust them into the patch pocket of her coat.

Peter stood on the verandah steps until the last puff of dust from the retreating Bossy had settled to the road. Then he turned and with long swinging strides made his way back to the jail from which he had so recently been released.

He forcibly pushed the image of Barbara to the back of his mind—Barbara, with her wind-blown yellow hair, so small that she had to stretch forward to put her foot on the accelerator, steering the temperamental Bossy around steep and tortuous mountain curves.

The clutch had away of sticking if you didn't manage it just right. Would it stick for Barbara? Could she gauge to the last inch of safety the margin of road on the outer edge? Would she remember in time that the brakes were not to be trusted, and shift to low gear on the down grades?

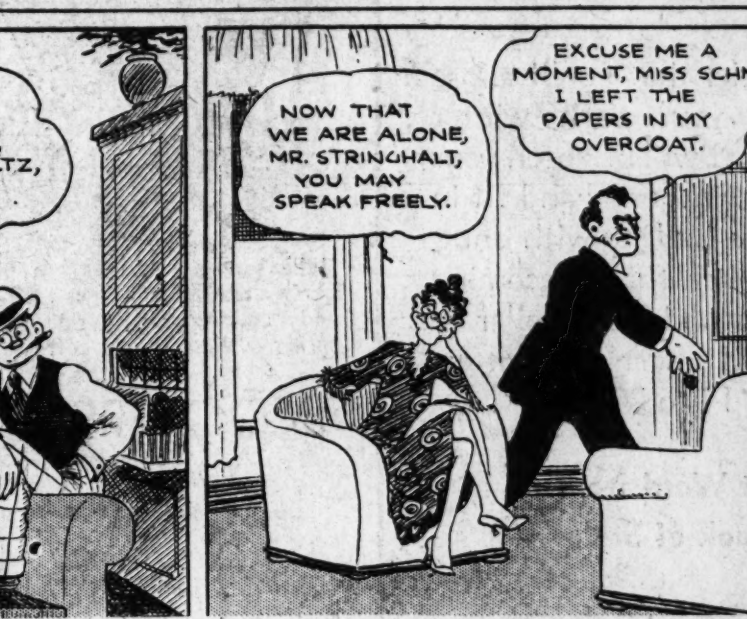

There were a dozen things he ought to have told her. By gosh, it would take hours to tell anyone the special things to remember in driving Bossy. With an effort, he switched his mind free of the vision of Barbara's bright head caught in a tangle of wreckage at the foot of some deep canyon. He had given her the job—a job for the Herald—and now he had his own job to attend to.

TECH AND GEORGIA PUSH WORK FOR GAME

Scenes at Waynesboro as Bird Dog Men Gather for Georgia's Annual State Field Trial Meet

the truck. The trials are fast reaching a conclusion. Ralph McGill's absorbing stories from Waynesboro will keep you in touch with events there. Kenneth Rogers, Constitution staff photographer, made these pictures.

Londos-Bartush Bout Tops Charity Mat Card

Harper and Jones Clash in Semi-Windup at Auditorium at 8:15 O'Clock.

What promises to be the greatest wrestling attraction in Atlanta's history—including, as it does, a feature match between Jim Londos and Bill Bartush, a semi-windup between Paul Harper and Paul Jones and two short preliminaries—is to go on at the auditorium tonight, starting at 8:15 o'clock, with the aid of charity as a purpose of equal importance with that of pleasing the fans.

Matchmaker Henry Weber is to turn 50 per cent of the gross gate receipts over to a commission appointed by the city council, that commission to supervise the dividing of the money to help Atlanta's needy.

Neale New Coach At West Virginia

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Dec. 2.—(AP)—Ira Rodgers, who resigned as head football coach at West Virginia University last night, will remain on the staff as first assistant and chief scout. It was made known tonight, A. Earle "Greasy" Neale, former major league baseball player and a former football coach at several colleges, including the University of Virginia, will succeed Rodgers as chief mentor.

Four Texas Stars On All-Star Team

DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Four members of the University of Texas football team which won the 1930 Southwest conference championship, won places on the honorary eleven named by the Associated Press after a poll of sports writers who observed all seven teams closely through the season.

THE TEAM.
PLAYERS: Lou Land, Southern Methodist; O. B. Blanton, Texas; Raynor, Baylor; Noble Atkins, Texas Christian; Bill Morgan, Texas Christian; Ben Bawell, Texas Christian; Adrian Tracy, Texas A. & M.; J. B. Wilkes, Baylor; Dexter Bailey, L. R.; Vernon Blalock, Texas; Ernest Kay, Texas.

TO LEAD TIGERS.
PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 2.—(AP)—William H. Yeckley, of Lorain, Ohio, was elected captain of the 1931 Princeton football team at a meeting of the lettermen today.

Writers Convene To Select Team

The all-conference football team will be selected today in New Orleans, La., when 10 prominent sports writers in the southern states will meet at the Roosevelt hotel. The team will be announced on Sunday, December 12.

The visiting sports writers will be guests of the New Orleans conference immediately after the conference.

Members of the board include Bill Keefe, Fred Digby and Harry Martinez, of New Orleans; Zipp Newman and Bob Phillips, of Birmingham; Blinkey Horn and Fred Russell, of Nashville, and Jimmy Burns, Ed Danforth and Morgan Blake, of Atlanta.

Those players selected by this group of sports writers will receive gold footballs.

CITY PREP LOOP TO HOLD MEET

Officers To Be Elected and Basketball Schedule Arranged Thursday.

An election of officers and the adoption of a basketball schedule for the 1930-31 season will feature the annual meeting of the City Prep League at 3:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon in Joe Bean's office at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

W. Rampley, of Decatur, president of the league, announced Tuesday that meeting had been called for Thursday in order that the teams may have plenty of opportunity to arrange an independent schedule in addition to the regular prep league games.

Since there is no prep league for football it will be the first meeting of the prep and plans for baseball, tennis, golf, swimming and other prep sports also will be discussed at the meeting.

Tech Freshmen Awarded Letters

Georgia Tech's undefeated freshmen football players were presented with sweaters and medals Tuesday afternoon by athletic officials.

Coch Alva Clay's yearling eleven, starting with a victory over Red Barrow's Monroe Aggies, progressed in strength and ended the season with a 6-0 victory over the Georgia Bulldogs Saturday afternoon in Athens.

Two brothers of former Tech stars led the lineups. They were W. H. Gardner and R. H. Tharpe, brothers of Gardner and Mack Tharpe.

Other members of the team who received awards Tuesday are T. G. Black, L. H. Clingan, Wink Davis, S. J. Edwards, J. Ferguson, C. M. Galloway, J. L. Grandle, E. J. Hafer, J. D. Lackey, Eddie Laws, R. D. McCalley, T. B. Peeler, W. B. Peterson, J. M. Poole, J. C. Sodenberg, J. R. Slocum and J. R. Warren.

Banquet Tonight To Honor Wade

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 2.—Wallace Wade, Alabama football coach for the past eight years, will be honored guest Wednesday night at a farewell banquet in Birmingham, to be given by the Birmingham alumni of the University of Alabama.

It will be a final testimonial to the unusual services which Wade has rendered Alabama, since he took charge eight years ago. During that time his Crimson Tide won a national title with a 30-0 victory over Washington University in the Pasadena Rose Bowl, in 1925, and the next year tied Stanford 7-7. In the New Year's Day play for the national championship.

The 1920 Crimson Tide will entertain for California about the middle of December to meet Washington State at Pasadena. It will be Wade's farewell game for Alabama, as he has accepted the post of head coach at Duke University for the 1931 season.

To the approaching Tech-Georgia game attaches a quality that your correspondent cannot hope to define. It is a quality that is the result of the meeting of one team that has been doused in the acid of disappointment and another that has been soaked in the salt bath of dismay.

Georgia's eleven rushed through October like a hurricane on the loose; her supporters saw visions of a championship and perhaps a trip to California. Then came the chill of November and the Georgia motor choked. One touchdown in four November games was all they could muster.

Georgia Tech came back after winning only two games in 1929 to regain lost ground. Tech's veteran line was deemed sufficient protection for the sophomore backs to go places. The Yellow Jackets won two of their first three games, then were cut down first by bad breaks, then by bad playing. Here they are in the twilight of a long season with only two victories and a tie game on the books.

The game Saturday in Grant field will have that quality—whatever you call it—that is evolved by the action of the acid of disappointment on the salt of dismay.

The boys will have a lot to get off their chests. It will be just another desperate Tech-Georgia battle and absolutely worth seeing.

CURB QUOTATIONS.

It seems to be the general opinion about town that Georgia will win by a tremendous score. Didn't Florida tie Georgia? Didn't Florida run up 55 points on Tech? That is the shrewd figuring of the master minds of the soda rail.

It seems to be a question of not whether Georgia will win, but by what score.

That is dangerous experting if you happen to be jealous of your reputation as an expert or if you are planning to pick up a little money to buy the wife and kiddies something for Christmas.

Georgia has scored but one touchdown since October 25. Tech has shown no defensive strength whatever, but at times they have carried that football right along the ground.

Tech no doubt has one good football game somewhere in the box, and if they pull it on Georgia, the Bulldogs will be extended to win. And just how far the Athens boys can extend themselves at this late date is a question. They have really burned themselves out five times this season—against Yale, North Carolina, Florida, New York University and Alabama—and have won three and tied one out of the five.

It is far safer to expect the Yellow Jackets to get going just once and to expect Georgia to be a little short of the fine form they have flashed in earlier games. The net result should be a close game with Tech holding an outside chance to win.

The Yellow Jackets have grown accustomed to bad breaks and more than once have gone haywire when one exploded under their noses. They might gather themselves together and refuse to be frightened by hard luck early in the game. If this miracle comes to pass the Flats folks may soothe a lot of gaping wounds.

GOOD WILL BE DONE.

City council is to be congratulated on rescinding its earlier action in ordering the proceeds from the charity wrestling match to be turned over to the city warden's office for distribution and appointing a capable non-political committee to handle the fund.

The prospect of Jim Londos, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, and Bill Bartush, the flashy new-

ATLANTA DOG NEW CHAMPION

Count of Joyeuse, Ottley-Hudson Pointer, Awarded State Crown.

By Ralph McGill, Staff Correspondent.

WAYNESBORO, Ga., Dec. 2.—Count of Joyeuse, the gallant little black and white pointer dog owned by Scott Hudson and J. K. Ditty, of Atlanta, found one bery of birds in a second series brace here this afternoon to win the members' all-age stake of the Georgia field trials and become the bird dog champion of the state.

The Count, handled by Scott Hudson himself, ranged far and wide on Monday, pointing and handling four bevers in perfect style to establish himself as the leading favorite. The judges brought him back this afternoon after the completion of the 12th brace in the all-age. Paired with Chummy Betty, a black and white setter, he ran a magnificent trial.

Birds were scarce today for some unknown reason. It may have been the cold wind that swept the fields all day. At any rate, they were scarce. The dogs had been down for 45 minutes before The Count made his find.

He smelled the birds at the edge of a small group of pine trees. He moved in cautiously as the birds ran ahead of him, but at last they stopped and he froze. They flushed up as one of the uniform members of the gallery blundered in too close with his horse, but the dog remained on point.

EASY VICTORY.

That find, together with his excellent range and hunting qualities, made him an easy first-place winner. It was his ability to handle game, however, which brought him victory.

Other dogs put down in the two days of the all-age stake approached him in this respect.

Count of Joyeuse is by Invader, sire of the late Mrs. Fisher, the Ottley-Hudson pointer, and is owned by Joe Reynolds, of Waynesboro, placed second, and Chummy Betty, a black and white setter, owned and handled by Joe Reynolds, finished third.

CONDITIONS IDEAL.

It was an ideal day for the trials. Resumption of the all-age stake, after the running of seven heats on Monday, found five more ready to go. Four were put down before lunch and the fifth immediately afterward. Then followed the two second series brace which lasted an hour and a half each.

Billy's Proctor Mike, a liver and white pointer owned by H. M. Curb, of Pineburg, Ga., finished second, and Chummy Betty, a black and white setter, owned and handled by Joe Reynolds, finished third.

There were enough of them to give quite a thrill when one of the handlers cried "point." Then there would be a thunder of hoofs across the fields, the swish of corn stalks or cotton stalks as the horses galloped up to see the handler and the dog handle the berry.

There was still the same old thrill in the roll of hills and the moving sage grass, looking like a golden sea as the wind stirred it.

Jackets and Bulldogs Push Work for Game

Strickland Returns as Tech Takes Offensive-Defensive Scrimmage.

With Bob Strickland back in harness and running with all his old-time form and vigor, Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets whipped through a two-hour scrimmage Tuesday afternoon, taking another step up the long road which leads to Saturday's clash with Georgia at Grant field.

The "A" and "B" squads took turn about in the center ring for the early portion of the scrimmage, each taking a 40-minute crack at the Grey Devils and the Georgia players.

The performance of both teams was well up to that of Monday, which was quite satisfactory, thank you. The Bulldogs maneuvered, run by a bunch of youngsters who like to see plays click and who are not one whit awed by the fact that it's the varsity they're facing, were not clicking.

It was a hard-tackling and driving White and Gold squad which started against one Devil crew and smacked it down right willingly. The replacements in both lineups clashed on practically the same terms.

Running signals while not engaged in the scrimmage, the two varsity squads squared off against each other for half an hour of offensive skirmishing to close the day's program. Good runs were frequent by both sets of backs.

The return to the stable of Strickland rubs out the crippled list at the Flats. Barring accident in future scrimmages—of which there are to be two—the Jackets will have their full strength available for the charge at the Bulldogs.

Another scrimmage is on the books for the afternoon. Still another, the fourth of the week, is probable for Thursday. Friday the Jackets will taper off with a short signal drill and Saturday the test will be applied.

Georgia Faces and Halts Engineer Plays in Scrimmage.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 2.—The second Georgia varsity football team, the one that Coach Harry Mehre depends on to relieve the regulars, got a much-sized assignment of work today as they started on their march for Grant field and the Tech game Saturday. For two hours in the last part of a chilly day they scrimmaged the freshman Red Devil team offensively and defensively. And they displayed plenty of stuff during the afternoon's work, although they looked rather ragged at times.

Sam Brown, little halfback who has been kept on the sidelines by injuries most of the year and who has been giving his services as a member of the Red Devils lately, did the starring for the red jerseyed boys when they ran Tech plays against the varsity.

Sam made the second varsity boys look bad three times this afternoon as he broke through their line and sprinted the length of the field for touchdowns.

But after those three runs by Brown, the varsity tightened up and the Reds were through for the day.

Lloyd Gilmore, understudy to Jack Roberts, stole all the thunder today when the Bulldogs went on offense. Gilmore juggled the ball around end, off tackle and through the center of the line for yardage galore. His driving seemed to have improved today, and he may start the Tech game if Jack Roberts is held out.

Johnny Davidson and Buster Mott, at the halfback posts, scored a touchdown each for the varsity, which, added to the two Gilmore made, gave the Bulldogs an edge on the "Tech" team.

The regulars will scrimmage for the first time Wednesday afternoon. The scrimmage will be a long one. They will get another one Thursday that will terminate the hard work. A light practice is slated Friday.

Spiller-Applying Case Decision Is Postponed

MONTREAL, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Fines of $100 each were assessed seven minor league players by the national board of arbitration today because of exhibition games they played against a Racine, Wis., team this fall.

The players fined were George Gerken and John Kioza, of Milwaukee; Edgar Holley, of Kansas City; Harry Strohm, of Little Rock; Fred Bedore, of Toronto; Bernard Tesmer, of Dallas, and Stan Lewan, of Hazleton, Pa.

The fines were imposed under the rules forbidding players in good standing from competing against ineligible players, which, added to the two Gilmore made, gave the Bulldogs an edge on the "Tech" team.

Applying was sold by Atlanta to the Chicago White Sox for $25,000 and one player, Douglas Tait, he claimed the Atlanta club had promised him 25 per cent of the purchase price and has asked the national board to award him $6,250.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Sometimes advice you think sounds bad. Will prove the best that could be had. —Jerry Muskrat.

It is true. There is bad advice and good advice and sometimes the latter sounds the worse. It was this way with the young Muskrat caught in a trap on an old log on the bank of the Laughing River. His father, Jerry Muskrat, had found him in his terrible trouble and actually had saved his life by leading Ruddy Fox away before he discovered the trapped youngster. That experience had made clear to the young Muskrat how terrible was the trouble he was in. Ruddy Fox might come back any time, or Old Man Coyote might

Mrs. Beatrice Lambdin Yopp Weds Col. G. P. O'Keeffe at Ceremony

Mrs. William Wallace Lambdin announces the marriage of her daughter, Mrs. Beatrice Lambdin Yopp, to Colonel Gerald Patrick O'Keeffe. The ceremony was performed yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock by Father Cotter at the home of the bride on Peachtree street, and was witnessed by members of the immediate families of the bride and the bridegroom.

The lovely bride wore a becoming gown of emerald green crepe, fashioned sleeveless with a short cape falling gracefully over the arms. It was belted at the natural waistline with a narrow belt studded in rhinestones. Completing the charming costume was a shoulder spray of fresh-tinted orchids.

The house was adorned with a lovely arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums and Killarney roses. Following the marriage service a buffet supper was served. The table in the dining room was covered with a cloth of imported lace and held in the center a silver epergne filled with pink roses.

The bride, who is descended from distinguished southern aristocracy, is a young woman of charming personality and business acumen. She was the widow of the late John William Yopp, a prominent publisher of trade journals, and a daughter of the late Judge William Wallace Lambdin, who was federal judge of the southern district of Georgia, residing in Savannah. Colonel O'Keeffe is the son of Mrs. Sarah Cox O'Keeffe and the late Captain Laurence Eugene O'Keeffe, pioneer citizens of Atlanta. He is prominent in military circles, being commander of the 122d infantry of the Georgia national guard.

Wedding Journey. Colonel and Mrs. O'Keeffe left immediately after the ceremony for a motor trip to Key West, Fla., from which place they will fly to Cuba. Upon their return from their wedding journey December 15, they will be at home at 1559 Peachtree.

Mrs. O'Keeffe traveled in a smart costume of Manila brown crepe, fashioned bolero style. The blouse was of satin in the new shade of astrakhan beige and her hat was a becoming off-the-face solid model in brown, trimmed in galek fur in the same contrasting shade as the blouse. A luxurious flared mink coat completed the ensemble.

Who's Who of Feminine Group Attending Meet of Educators

BY MAINER LEE TOLER.

The women attending the convention of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States, which is being held this week at the Atlanta-Biltmore, are attracting much attention, whether they come as members of the educational group or as wives of distinguished individuals.

Important among the visitors is Mrs. Harry D. Campbell, wife of Dr. Campbell, president of Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Va., and president of the association holding its conference here. Mrs. Campbell enjoys the privilege of being the mother of two splendid sons as well as the wife of the beloved head of the well-known old Virginia college. Both sons of Dr. and Mrs. Campbell are graduates of Washington and Lee, and the older one, Edmund Douglas Campbell, who took his master's degree from Harvard, is now a member of a prominent law firm in Richmond, D. C. The younger son, Robert Bailey Campbell, is studying for his master's degree in the Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Va., and like his parents, is a brilliant scholar.

Dr. Meta Glass, president of Sweet Briar college in Virginia, and Emily Dutton, dean of this renowned school for girls, are two of the most distinguished feminine figures attending the convention. Dr. Glass and her presence is proving inspirational. Dean Dutton will lead the discussion today at the dinner conference on "Problems of the Sophomore Year." Dr. Glass is a sister of Senator Carter Glass, senior senator from Virginia, and she is one of the most intellectual women in the south. Since her graduation from Converse, Miss Anderson has had wide experience in educational fields, having been active in high schools, and since taking her master's degree at Columbia University. As executive secretary of her alma mater's alumnus, Miss Anderson is closely associated with this South Carolina college and points with pride to the graduates of the institution who are now leaders in art, music, literature and social realms in the various sections of the country. With enthusiasm she numbers Julia Peters, renowned writer and winner of the Pulitzer prize, among the alumnae of Converse.

Woman's Guild of All Saints' Church Sponsors Annual Bazar December 10

Woman's Guild of All Saints' Episcopal church sponsors the annual bazar in the parish house, Wednesday, December 10, with Mrs. Dan Harris, president of the guild acting as general chairman. The room will be arranged with attractively decorated booths, and useful and ornamental articles will be offered for sale. Mrs. Harris invites the public to attend the bazar and purchase Christmas gifts, this undertaking furnishing excellent opportunity for a splendid selection of Yuletide presents.

Home-made cakes, jellies, pickles, preserves, candies, and dolls and aprons will be sold at the booth in charge of Mesdames Dudley Cowles, J. Houston Johnston, Edward S. Lewis, Louise Windham and Deaconess Katherine Wood. Mrs. Joseph D. Orme will have charge of the white elephant booth, in which all kinds of discarded articles will be sold. In this modern age housekeepers have weeded out furniture and bric-a-brac that proved too large for an apartment into which they have moved, and, therefore, some remarkable bargains will be found at Mrs. Orme's booth.

The turkey dinner, served under the supervision of Mesdames Earl Scott and Thomas Morgan, needs no press agent, as the delicious food served at these annual bazars has built an enviable reputation for the Woman's Guild. The tables, exquisitely set with crystal and china, will feature a suggestion of the Christmas red and green introduced in the bit of bolly and candles. Many well-known society maids and matrons will be waitresses and wear the most attractive green smocks, including members of the committee, Mesdames Willis Jones, Evans Joseph, Sherwood Higgs, J. N. Harper, J. L. Quinn, T. B. French, Albert Dunn, Thomas Crenshaw, John R. Dillon, H. L. Willis, F. B. Clarke, J. R. Polk, J. PROHIBITION ENEMIES TO HOLD CAUCUS TODAY

Lintheum, Democrat, Plans Campaign for Repeal or Modification

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Enemists of prohibition in the house of representatives plan tomorrow to hold a caucus of their own to push forward their attacks on the dry laws.

They already are armed with a capacious supply of ammunition. In the first day's pile of new bills, the members placed two proposals for functional polls on repeal of the eighteenth amendment. In addition bills went to permit the manufacture and sale of wine and beer.

The call for the wet meeting went out from Representative Lintheum, democrat, Maryland, who last session generated the anti-prohibition block, managing the wet presentation of evidence at the lengthy dry law hearings of the judiciary committee. He wants to lay out an aggressive campaign for modification or repeal, starting at this session, but with the next congress principally in mind. In that group, which meets next year, the wets are confident they will have superior strength.

The proposition of modification or repeal, however, contained the wide alternative which has made difficult in the past the forming of a strong wet coalition. The variety of methods proposed in the new bills reflected new views in the minds of the wet members.

Representative McLeod, republican, Michigan, was taken into the new proposal for amending the constitution to legalize the manufacture of liquor for use in homes and places of abode. He also sought a referendum on the eighteenth amendment.

This was the objective of the resolution offered by Representative Andrew, republican, Massachusetts, who proposed allowing the states seven years for ratification of a convention. Federal legalization of 4 per cent beer and 10 per cent wine and cider was advocated by Representative Boylan, democrat, New York.

Chairman Johnson, of the house immigration committee, called his group to meet Thursday.

We will consider all the bills which have been introduced before mapping out a legislative program," he said.

Representative Dickstein, of New York, a democratic member of the committee, said the present restriction being applied through visas was illegal.

"I favor revising the whole law on Chinese, so that the government can have some sort of grip on the situation," Dickstein said.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The massive chandeliers of the White House reception rooms flashed brilliantly tonight over a distinguished assemblage of government officials at the first function of the winter season, the cabinet dinner.

The table in the state dining room was decorated with bronze chrysantheums and poinsettias and asparagus sprigs.

Afterward the guests assembled in the east room for a musicale. Fifty guests were invited to this latter function.
